

AN ABSENT-MINDED Harlem mother has been so much in the habit of telling her children to their mother who preferred any request that the child after a time took to going to her headquarters. One day the eldest headed six, wanted to look at a "book" belonging to his father and asked permission of his mother. She replied, "Go and ask your father." "Why," said the boy, in astonishment, "is he the boss now?"

A lot of manuscript in Daniel Webster's handwriting, it is alleged, has been discovered in a bag of old paper stock at New Bedford, in which are nine pages, plainly in Webster's hand, containing the opening of President Fillmore's inaugural.

Gen. Grant is said to be worried very much over the discovery of a flaw in the title or deed of the ground on which his newly-finished residence on Sixty-sixth Street, New York, stands. An aged negro woman claims to own the ground on which it is built.

An old pair of trousers had been hanging in a barnyard in Reno, Cal., for some time, and they had become the home of a nest of hornets. An Indian begged the trousers of the owner, and was gratified in having his request granted. The red skin, with great pride, put on the garment and started down the street, in quick time and many motions, accompanied by a cheerful war whoop.

Daniel Webster, while a young man, taught at Fryeburg Academy and helped take out his board by copying deeds in the Registry of Deeds, the registrar being his landlord. The present registrar, Mr. Seymour Hobbs, is a gentleman of the old school, who takes great pleasure in showing the old books in which the great statesman used to write. It was here that the delivered his first Fourth of July oration.

The funeral took place at Alexander, Va., on Wednesday last week of Col. William E. McLean, who had the singular misfortune to own, and reside upon the fields of Bull Run and Appomattox when the two armies met at the beginning and ending of the war. After Bull Run, anticipating continued hostilities in that neighborhood, he bought a farm near Appomattox River, to which he removed his family. It was on this farm that Gen. Lee completed the formal act of surrender.

Fowler Bragg, Esq., has returned from his trip to the Rangely lakes. He is occasionally asked "Why didn't you send me some trout?" He fished two days under the superintendence of the guide at an expense of $4.50 a day, and "I'll bet" says Mr. Bragg to some gentleman, "you can't tell within ten how many trout we caught." "You didn't catch any," answered one. "Well, we didn't get a bite," informed Mr. Bragg. "The guide felt worse about it than I did. One man, a green fisherman from New York, caught 12 in one forenoon, one a four pounder. With-out a guide one forenoon I caught four trout."

The people of Otisfield will celebrate the Fourth by a gathering at P. W. Baptist church, at East Otisfield, where addresses will be made, in the interest of the cause of Temperance, on Sunday Schools, and other exercises appropriate to the occasion.

The summer school closes on Friday, June 30th. The school has been under the charge of Miss Clark, of Naples. Length of term eight weeks. There will be a full term, of eight weeks, to be taught by a female. During the winter a male teacher will be employed.

Jacob Gilson lives in Harrison, in Cumberland County Maine. He is eighty-four years old, and is entirely blind. He has been blind more than fifty years.

When he was from thirty to fifty years old, he lived on a small farm alone, which he carried on himself; planting, sowing, hoeing, mowing, reaping and doing all kinds of work done by those, who could see.

He kept a horse and cow, made butter, did his own cooking, cut and hauled his fire wood etc. He could "dress" flax in a neater manner than most men who could see.

He walked with a cane, by which he felt his way along, and very seldom got lost or failed to go where he desired. He would take a "bee line" across a pasture to meet a man at work, and would, in almost every case, go directly to him.

When about fifty years old, he was married, and his wife lived about twenty years, during which time they carried on a farm, kept a horse and cow, and did very well.

After the death of his wife, he conveyed his property to the town of Harrison to secure his support in old age. He has been at the "poor farm" several years in the winter, but preferring his old mode of living, he spends the summers on his "old place," does his own cooking, raises potatoes, beans, etc., doing all the work himself, even to "breaking up" the ground, which he does with a hoe. He has planted about one fourth of an acre, this year, having worked over all the ground with a hoe and spade.

He enjoys good health and seems very happy. He walks from two to four miles to attend church, and two or three miles to attend a social meeting in the evening. He says, "he has many things to be thankful for," and he does not seem inclined to murmur or complain. He loves to work, and is not willing to be idle. He sings hymns and repeats passages of Scriptures to help him to be happy and cheerful.

He is looking by faith to a land where there will be no darkness, "no night," but one eternal day of light and joy, at God's right hand.

We are to have a Fourth of July celebration.

Frank Welch's child recently fell and broke its leg above the knee.

H. A. Mills' stable is up and boarded and work on his house is progressing.

Mr. A. K. Martin of Haverhill, Mass., has been spending a few days here and at the lakes.

We are glad to learn that J. W. Clark, Esq., received the Senatorial nomination from this part of the county.

Rev. Mr. Cummings of the M. E. Church exchanged with Rev. Mr. Dame of the Congregational church last Sabbath.

Mrs. James N. Hall of So. Andover, who has been ill with consumption for some time, died last week. The funeral occurred at the house Saturday.

West Paris.

Samuel B. Locke, Esq., is the boss fisherman of the place this far. He caught a trout recently while on an excursion to the lakes that weighed five pounds and a quarter.

A little breeze struck this vicinity Monday about 5 o'clock, p. m. It destroyed a portion of Jerad Young's barn. Joseph Child's and Abner Benson's barns were unroofed and more or less demolished. Cyren Benson's house loses a chimney. Many large trees were uprooted by the roots. A stable door was blown from its fastenings and struck Capt. John Ross. A large iron hasp managed to fasten itself into the fleshy part of the Captain's arm making a frightful wound that required some twenty stitches or more to bring together.

News was received Monday of the death of A. P. Andrews, Esq., at Groveton, N. H. Mr. Andrews was one of our best and most prominent men. His home was in Paris. He went to Groveton and vicinity buying stock where he was taken sick with pleurisy and pneumonia some four weeks ago, which resulted fatally. The funeral took place Wednesday. He was buried by the Granite Lodge of Free Masons of which he was a member. He was a member of the Mechanic Falls and Portland Masonic Relief and his widow will receive some two thousand dollars therefrom. He leaves a wife and three children.

Paris Hill.

The telegraph line to Paris Hill is up and the wire strung. Miss Jennie Hubbard, assistant at the post office is to have charge of the office as soon as she can learn the business.

REPUBLICAN CO. CONVENTION.

Through the courtesy of Capt W. V. Whitmarsh of the Elm House, our reporter was present at Tuesday's convention on Paris Hill.

At a little after ten, the delegates assembled in the Court House and the convention was called to order, by Judge Woodbury of Bethel, who made a speech setting forth the duties and object of the convention and the necessity for harmonious action. Abner Davis Esq., of Bethel, was elected temporary chairman and made a stirring speech and the name Col. Robie was received with applause. Prayer was offered by Dr. H. C. Estes. Thos. Baker, of Oxford was elected temporary secretary.

The county committee acted as committee on credentials. This committee had but little work to do and it was done quickly. They shortly reported that a full delegation, with the exception of one from Brownfield and Milton Plantation, were present. There were 89 delegates, all of whom had proper credentials out of a possible 91. The temporary chairman and secretary were made permanent and the assembly was here pronounced in working order.

Messrs. A. Young, H. G. Brown and G. P. Beau were designated by the chair to nominate a county committee. They made the following slate for the Republican County Committee, which were duly elected, John F. Stanley, Paris; J. G. Kimball, Bethel; P. B. Young, of Hiram.

The committee to draft resolutions developed upon L. A. Wadsworth; Enoch Foster; F. N. Ridlon; A. T. Bonney; C. W. Kimball and J. P. Swasey.

On committee to "receive, sort and count the votes" was Capt. W. W. Whitmarsh, of Norway; W. W. Wait, of Dixfield; Davis, of Denmark; Jennings, of Fryeburg; and W. S. Howe of Hiram.

On motion of Farrington, of Fryeburg, E. T. Stearns, of Lovell, was nominated for senator for the western section by acclamation. There was no other candidate in the field.

For senatorial honors in the eastern section, there were two candidates. Hon. Enoch Foster, in a glowing speech presented the name of J. W. Clark, of Andover. This was followed by H. M. Bearce Esq., of Norway, who asked the nomination of ex-senator Swasey.

The committee, whose duty it was to "receive, sort and count the votes" passed the hat around, contribution box fashion, and took in 34 votes for Swasey and 52 for Clark, the latter gentleman was nominated. Mr. Swasey, in a few fitting remarks, desired to make Clark's nomination unanimous. His wish was granted.

There being no other candidates, G. F. Hammond, of Paris and F. G. Bradley, of Fryeburg, were nominated by acclamation, for the two places on the board of county commissioners.

For Clerk of Courts there were more aspirants. Three candidates and a ballot was taken, resulting in 17 votes for J. A. Roberts, of Norway; 34 for S. R. Hutchins, of Rumford and 48 for A. S. Austin, of Dixfield, who was pronounced nominated. On this the full number of votes (89) were cast.

For County Attorney J. S. Wright, Paris; and J. F. Stanley, for the eastern register of deeds and S. C. Hobbs, for the western register, were nominated by acclamation.

The number of candidates for sheriff would lead one to suppose that that office was a very desirable one. There were six who were "in the hands of their friends."

Two ballots were taken with the following results:

J. H. Ridlon, Porter,	5	2
O. W. Douglass, Paris,	15	7
C. M. Wormwell, Bethel,	18	12
J. S. Parker, Stoneham,	21	4
Jordan Stacy, Porter,	27	50
Wm. Douglass, Waterford	7

Mr. Stacy, having a majority, was declared nominated. The committee on resolutions made their report. The resolutions were the same as usual on such occasions. Adjourned to meet individually at the polls next September.

THE SENATE NOMINEES.

E. T. Stearns, of Lovell, is 38 years old and a graduate of the Portland Business College. He was in the late war in the 23d Maine Regiment. He has served on the board of selectmen of Lovell, for six years, being four years' chairman of the board. He is engaged in farming and trade.

J. W. Clark, of Andover, is 69 years of age. He has represented his district in legislature and has held the usual town offices. At present he is a farmer. Formerly he was engaged in staging and has been mail contractor from South Paris to Andover, for some twenty years. At one time he was engaged in the Starch Manufacture at Andover.

"Down East" is a great country. There is a great deal of good land and salt water in the State of Maine. Our people are more industrious, better housed and better clothed, have better schools and drink less rum than any people on the face of the globe.—Thom Stearns.

The Trout Fishing Lie.

"The trout lie," said Captain Herbert, is the gem of all fishers. He is the saddle-rock liar; a moose among untelopes; Hyperion to a satyr; he is the long-tailed comet among the quick twinklers. All men cannot be trout liars. The trout lie must be born with a peculiar fitness for the task, and then he must be educated to it and make lies a life-work.

"When David said in his haste, 'All men are liars,' Sanl and Abinadab, Doeg and Edmonite, had probably just returned from a trout fish down along the brook in the valley Elah, and were telling what they had seen and what they had done, and David, as he listened to them murdering the unarmed truth, naturally supposed there was no more truth left in the hearts of men in all the wide world.

"The trout lie exceeds all other liars, because the man who has done any amount of trout fishing is, to a certain extent, a traveled man. It is his custom to sit on the veranda and tell his stories, crushing all competition, and putting his feet on the neck of all ordinary striped bass and land-locked salmon liars. But if it happen that just as he has told his masterpiece the opposition trout lie comes in with a right bower, a genuine royal flush of a trout lie, the first liar is hurt to the heart; he is dejected and sorrowful and he is not another word that night. But he draws new inspiration from the defeat, and the very next place he goes to he appropriates the lie that paralyzed him, and, unblushingly claiming it as his own, defiantly crushes down all pitiful competition with a crowning lie that only two days before crushed him.

"There are several kinds of trout liars. The liar of weights, who never catches more than half a dozen trout a day, but they each weigh anywhere from eight to ten pounds. Then there is the liar of numbers who always catches so many dozen in one hour and twenty-eight minutes. And there is the liar of places, who knows hidden pools, dark and still, in the secret places of the rocks, that are just boiling over with trout, and he takes you under with trout, and he takes you under without a nibble.

"But you can never corner a trout liar. Arithmetic, facts, science, probabilities, precedent, general principles and eternal fitness of things may combine in overwhelming array to prove him the awfulest liar in England or America; it doesn't disturb him. He lies on, calmly, confidently, enthusiastically, always locating the scene of his lies so far away he is pretty certain you will never go there.

"There are limits to human belief," the good jester said, rising to his feet. "You may believe what the candidate says on the stump; you may believe what a man tells you in a horse trade; you may believe the snake liar, but when a man takes his cigar from his lips, and with a simple prefix of a place and date, starts in on a trout story, bar and bolt and lock and double lock the gates of your belief when he gets to the mace. Don't believe a single, solitary trout, not though it weighs less than a pound. Under the shadow of the trout, truth dies, the man that fishes four days and only hooks one lone trout, so small that he loses it in his empty basket, comes home the biggest liar of them all."

Canton.

W. W. Rose lost a valuable yearling colt, by getting a stub stuck in his head, thus producing lockjaw.

A thunder shower passed over Canton, Monday night, accompanied by violent winds. Saturday and Sunday were the warmest days of the season. The thermometer stood at 90° and 100° in the shade.

The towns up river are well covered with hard wood lumber and cordwood which will not float. Large flat boats could be built to transport wood and lumber at a very little cost, to the pulp mill and railroad at Canton. At the rate the pulp mill is consuming wood, it will be necessary to devise some plan to get it soon. Twenty-five cords are said to be used daily.

The R. F. and B. R. R. began running passenger trains from Gilbertville the 26th. George A. Steyens is the ticket agent at that station. "Dame rumor" has it that a steamboat is to be run from Gilbertville, Canton, to Dixfield and Mexico. Mr. Hiram Ricker has a charter to navigate this river between those places.

A smashup took place in Canton village, Sunday night. As Arthur Glines was passing Frank Richardson their wagons collided, causing a complete turnover of Richardson's carriage, and throwing Mr. R. and wife out. They were injured somewhat, but reported to be getting along quite well Monday.—Lewiston Journal.

"Father, bring home your money to night," is the title of a new temperance song.

Save your pennies for fire-crackers. The Fourth comes on Tuesday. The usual great and glorious, collective picnic celebration of Norway will be omitted this year. The ladies of the Universalist Society, however, are to have a Strawberry Festival, in Concert Hall, in the evening.

Complaint reaches us of boys bathing in the pond, in view of the public highway. There is a law prohibiting bathing in public places. The boys will do well to select a more secluded place than in the pond in full view of the public highway. A word in season is sufficient.

Lucius Denison, Esq., died at his residence on Main Street last Monday morning. Mr. Denison had been in failing health for some months past, though he was able to be about and to walk out up to a few days of his death. He was born in Burk, Vt., in 1803 and was consequently 79 years of age. He was actively engaged in mercantile pursuits in Burk for many years and represented his town in the State legislature, and held many other offices of trust and responsibility. He resided in Chelsea, Mass., several years and moved to Norway in 1860. He was engaged in trade here for a number of years and was interested in the Androscoggin Wood Pulp Manufacturing Co. The funeral was held from his late residence Wednesday, Rev. Mr. Hooper officiating. Mr. Denison had been married twice. He leaves a widow and ten children. All his children but three who were unprovably detained were present at the funeral. In Mr. Denison's death we lose a much esteemed and respected citizen.

We wish our correspondents would remember and send in their items early in the week. Send them so they will reach us by Tuesday and should anything of importance occur later, and before we go to press (Thursday noon) send it by a second letter or postal card. We want the items, bare that fact in mind.

Dr. Orrin Stevens, druggist at Oxford, was again called to this village on Monday, in response of the "Search and Seizure Process." He claims not to have sold any liquor unlawfully and therefore plead not guilty. Justice Knapp found differently and imposed a fine of $100 and costs. The doctor appealed.

The Summer School at the Center of the town, Dist. No. 3, taught by Miss Nellie Andrews, closed last week. The term of eight weeks was very successful and efficient. The whole number registered was 12. Average attendance 11. At the examination at the close of the school, a number of visitors were present and the exercises were listened to with marked attention and gave excellent satisfaction. Miss Andrews is very much liked as a teacher.

Dr. G. P. Jones and his son-in-law G. W. Holmes recently made an excursion to the rural districts. Lovell and Stoneham were in the circuit. The doctor took his dentist's tools along with him and in less than eight hours, he had extracted between 60 and 70 teeth, on the route. Whether Holmes did any "pulling" we are unable to find out, though we don't doubt but what he rendered the doctor some valuable assistance.

Elmer Bacon, about two months ago began to grow lame, in his right leg. His lameness was very troublesome though he kept about his work. Some few weeks ago a small sore began to gather on his leg about four inches from the ankle joint. Tuesday morning of this week, he extracted from this sore, a large sized cantharid needle. This brought to the memory of his mother the fact that when Elmer was two years old, he accidentally swallowed a needle and for two or three years afterward, he was subject to fits. According to this, the needle has been travelling around in his person for twenty years. For the past eighteen years or to the time he was taken lame he has been well and rugged. The needle is badly rusted and the head of it is considerably worn.

This is the season of the year when the ice cream girl attaches herself to the young man who has plenty of shekels. Love and shade glens and moonlight rambles are all right, but when it comes down to business the girls always get a pool on the young man who buys ice cream.

Grease a plate with lard and set it where insects abound. They prefer it to anything else. Occasionally turn the plate bottom up over the fire, and the ants will fall in with the melting lard. Reset the plate until all are caught. Powdered borax scattered over the places they infest will cause them to leave. It is said a few leaves of green wormwood scattered among their haunts will disperse the black ants.—Ex.

It is expected that Rev. Mr. Alchin, who intends to go soon to Japan as a missionary, will preach to his former parishioners and friends at Norway Centre next Sunday forenoon.

No arrangements are being made to celebrate the Fourth. Those who do not stay at home will probably visit Milton Plantation or Lewiston, unless they prefer to go elsewhere.

An infant tornado visited our village on Monday last, between 5 and 6 o'clock, p. m. The wind blew fiercely, filling the streets with dust. The large elm by the old tannery lot was uprooted, and a one foot limb of another elm by Leonard Shurtlett's residence was broken off. Rodney Titcomb had two apple trees torn up by the roots. Not a few were frightened, so that one man in a workshop turned pale, and another, an inhabitant of the Emerald Isle, cried out in despair, "Howdy Mother."

A GAME OF DRAW.

Extravagant Gaming in Newburg, N. Y., Exposed by a Lawsuit.

A letter from Newburg, N. Y., to the New York Sun says: Dr. Monteville M. Hedges of Newburg, N. Y., was arrested by Sheriff Odell on a charge of "cheating at games," and with his arrest has come out the story of a game of draw poker, at which three well known Newburgers played a year ago, and in which one of them lost $150,000. The three are Dr. Hedges, William M. Scott, and Francis P. Weed. Mr. Weed is a son of the late Harry Weed, a millionaire, the bulk of whose property was in New York, and who is said to have left his son and daughter each $500,000. Francis P. Weed lives elegantly, and has invested at least a portion of his money in the manufacture of woolen goods and in a large farm in Dakota. Dr. Hedges for a long time had his dental establishment over a dry goods store on the corner of Third and Water streets. He has shown a deep interest in a wide range of sporting matters.

It is not positively known where these three played the memorable game in question, but it is believed that it was in Dr. Hedges's dental office. Dr. Hedges dealt the cards, and it was Mr. Scott, "age," Dr. Hedges, after each had discarded, dealt two cards to Mr. Weed, who, it appears, hoped to complete either four of a kind or what is known as a full hand. The doctor dealt one card to Mr. Scott, who desired, it is afterward seen, "to fill a straight and flush both." The doctor did not discard. Weed's was the first bet, and he wagered $1,000. The others followed, and when the hands were dealt Mr. Weed is reported to have said: "There's no use going any higher, boys; you haven't got the money to lose." Mr. Scott replied that if he had not got the cash, he had property, and could give security for all he saw fit to bet.

The betting went on, and the stakes rose from $1,000 to $5,000 with each breath. Dr. Hedges dropped his cards, and announced himself "out" early in the betting, but the others kept piling up the thousands with a recklessness that would have blanched the face of an old-fashioned Mississippi, and scored an American Club man of twelve years ago. When the "call" came each man had $150,000 risked on his hand. Mr. Scott showed a straight flush, king high, and won. Mr. Weed exhibited four aces. It was seen that Dr. Hedges had won on a full hand. It is said that Weed protested against having to pay the full amount he had wagered, and after a general discussion it was agreed to compromise with him for $120,000. Mr. Weed paid $20,000 in cash and gave two notes for $50,000 each, payable in six at nine months. He agreed to keep the matter secret even from his business partner and the others promised to speak of it to no one. At the expiration of six months he paid the first note with interest. The amount is understood to have been $51,000. When the second note matured he paid $55,000 and gave a new note for $15,000.

The notes were placed with Cashier Bostwick, of the Stinking National Bank of Pine Plains, who is said to be an intimate friend of Dr. Hedges, and who had agreed to collect them for five per cent. of their face. This made the total expense to Weed in the matter some $107,000. The matter remained a secret known only to those who were concerned, until Mr. Elmer Moore, Mr. Weed's business associate, who had been to their farm in Dakota, learned something of the transaction. When he returned to Newburg Mr. Weed made a clean breast of the whole affair. The two then set to work to recover what they could. Mr. Weed refused to pay the $15,000 balance on the note, and, in order to try to recover what he had already paid, retained Messrs. William and S. W. Fullerton, the New York lawyers.

At this time Dr. Hedges was said to be out West with a string of trotters which he bought last year, and which, it is alleged, were purchased with his share of the winnings. Mr. Scott was either in California or Canada.

The legal proceedings were begun seven days ago, and, besides the attachments against the real and personal property of the Hedges family, there are now three suits, civil and criminal suits against the doctor, and a civil suit against Mrs. Hedges. The warrant of attachment was procured from Justice Gilbert in Brooklyn on June 7. It is against the property of both Scott and Hedges. The warrant was issued by Court on the application of Mr. Weed, who alleged that his personal estate had been damaged to the extent of $85,000 which he had paid on the notes by the fraud and wrongful acts of Messrs. Hedges and Scott. The civil suit which has been brought against Mrs. Hedges is to recover about $1,800. Mr. Weed lost by giving security for the payment of the expenses of a house she rented of ex-Gov. Morgan in a fashionable neighborhood in New York. Proceedings have also been taken which have for their object the making good of the attachments against the real and personal property of Mrs. Josephine Hedges and her son, Mrs. Hedges arrived in Newburg on Saturday evening last, but whether in response to notice from a friend here or not is not known. She made arrangements with the cashier of the Quinsack National Bank to let her have a check placed in her in a rented box in the vault early on Monday morning. That morning she visited the bank and got the box. The sheriff also put in an appearance, but the box had been delivered before the attachment had been served on him.

The cashier says he does not know the contents of the box, but it is said to have contained diamonds, jewelry and securities. Mrs. Hedges took a train for New York on her way to Kullig House, Williamstown, Mass. Still another proceeding was one to make Cashier Bostwick, of the Stinking Bank divulge what information he had in regard to the two $50,000 notes on which $25,000 had been paid, and his connection with them. This took the cashier before Judge Barnard in Poughkeepsie twice, and he gave a check for $3,500, the ten per cent. he received for collecting the money on the notes.

Dr. Hedges came here from Cornwall and went direct to Mr. Weed's house in Montgomery street. It is said that he went there to settle the matter in some way with Mr. Weed, but that Mr. Weed declined to do so. They came down together afterward and went direct to Mr. Anthony's office. Sheriff Odell heard of the doctor's presence in the city, and at once stationed deputy sheriffs at every avenue of departure. Then the sheriff went to Mr. Anthony's office, and while there Weed and Hedges came in, and the doctor gave himself up. He has retained a lawyer to be present at the hearing before Judge Barnard.

When the case was up for examination Mr. Weed testified mainly as follows: "One evening in June of last year I played a game of poker with Dr. Hedges and W. M. Scott in the laboratory of Dr. Hedges's house at Newburg. We began playing about 8 o'clock in the evening. At the end of several games I went out, but shortly returned. I think Dr. Hedges dealt the first hand after my return. I received three aces. I drew two cards and got the fourth ace. The doctor dealt and Dr. Hedges announced himself as satisfied with his. We began betting in amounts from $50 to $1,000. When the 'pot' reached $5,000 I wished to stop. The other two refused to accept betting and I stayed. When the 'pot' went up to $50,000 I said, 'Boys, there is no use of my playing. There is not one of us who will pay the amount.' We then bet, and the hands were called when the bets amounted to $30,000. Scott had a straight flush, which was the winning hand. I said, 'I am through, gentlemen. I will give you my check for $30,000 and call it square.' Scott laughed and refused to accept anything except the full amount. Hedges secretly proposed to get even with him by marking the cards. 'We had several talks about settling, and finally Scott agreed to take $20,000 in cash and my note for $10,000. I objected to give him my note, but Hedges said that if he did not get the cash, he had property, and could give security for all he saw fit to bet.

The betting went on, and the stakes rose from $1,000 to $5,000 with each breath. Dr. Hedges dropped his cards, and announced himself "out" early in the betting, but the others kept piling up the thousands with a recklessness that would have blanched the face of an old-fashioned Mississippi, and scored an American Club man of twelve years ago. The Knack in Bread-Making.

The Lewiston (Me.) Journal says:—

Three slices of bread shown by a Welsh flour-dealer, the other day, spoke for themselves. Placed side by side they showed very abruptly into three strikingly distinct tints. One was of the hue of graham and fell into your hand like a half-baked brick. Another was white, and while there Weed and Hedges came in, and the doctor gave himself up. He has retained a lawyer to be present at the hearing before Judge Barnard.

When the case was up for examination Mr. Weed testified mainly as follows: "One evening in June of last year I played a game of poker with Dr. Hedges and W. M. I think Dr. Hedges dealt the first hand after my return. I received three aces. I drew two cards and got the fourth ace. The doctor dealt and Dr. Hedges announced himself as satisfied with his. We began betting in amounts from $50 to $1,000. When the 'pot' reached $5,000 I wished to stop. The other two refused to accept betting and I stayed. When the 'pot' went up to $50,000 I said, 'Boys, there is no use of my playing. There is not one of us who will pay the amount.' We then bet, and the hands were called when the bets amounted to $30,000. Scott had a straight flush, which was the winning hand. I said, 'I am through, gentlemen. I will give you my check for $30,000 and call it square.' Scott laughed and refused to accept anything except the full amount. Hedges secretly proposed to get even with him by marking the cards. 'We had several talks about settling, and finally Scott agreed to take $20,000 in cash and my note for $10,000. I objected to give him my note, but Hedges said that if he did not get the cash, he had property, and could give security for all he saw fit to bet.

The betting went on, and the stakes rose from $1,000 to $5,000 with each breath. Dr. Hedges dropped his cards, and announced himself "out" early in the betting, but the others kept piling up the thousands with a recklessness that would have blanched the face of an old-fashioned Mississippi, and scored an American Club man of twelve years ago. When the "call" came each man had $150,000 risked on his hand. Mr. Scott showed a straight flush, king high, and won. Mr. Weed exhibited four aces. It was seen that Dr. Hedges had won on a full hand. It is said that Weed protested against having to pay the full amount he had wagered, and after a general discussion it was agreed to compromise with him for $120,000. Mr. Weed paid $20,000 in cash and gave two notes for $50,000 each, payable in six at nine months. He agreed to keep the matter secret even from his business partner and the others promised to speak of it to no one. At the expiration of six months he paid the first note with interest. The amount is understood to have been $51,000. When the second note matured he paid $55,000 and gave a new note for $15,000.

The notes were placed with Cashier Bostwick, of the Stinking National Bank of Pine Plains, who is said to be an intimate friend of Dr. Hedges, and who had agreed to collect them for five per cent. of their face. This made the total expense to Weed in the matter some $107,000. The matter remained a secret known only to those who were concerned, until Mr. Elmer Moore, Mr. Weed's business associate, who had been to their farm in Dakota, learned something of the transaction. When he returned to Newburg Mr. Weed made a clean breast of the whole affair. The two then set to work to recover what they could. Mr. Weed refused to pay the $15,000 balance on the note, and, in order to try to recover what he had already paid, retained Messrs. William and S. W. Fullerton, the New York lawyers.

At this time Dr. Hedges was said to be out West with a string of trotters which he bought last year, and which, it is alleged, were purchased with his share of the winnings. Mr. Scott was either in California or Canada.

The legal proceedings were begun seven days ago, and, besides the attachments against the real and personal property of the Hedges family, there are now three suits, civil and criminal suits against the doctor, and a civil suit against Mrs. Hedges. The warrant of attachment was procured from Justice Gilbert in Brooklyn on June 7. It is against the property of both Scott and Hedges. The warrant was issued by Court on the application of Mr. Weed, who alleged that his personal estate had been damaged to the extent of $85,000 which he had paid on the notes by the fraud and wrongful acts of Messrs. Hedges and Scott. The civil suit which has been brought against Mrs. Josephine Hedges is to recover about $1,800. Mr. Weed lost by giving security for the payment of the expenses of a house she rented of ex-Gov. Morgan in a fashionable neighborhood in New York. Proceedings have also been taken which have for their object the making good of the attachments against the real and personal property of Mrs. Josephine Hedges and her son, Mrs. Hedges arrived in Newburg on Saturday evening last, but whether in response to notice from a friend here or not is not known. She made arrangements with the cashier of the Quinsack National Bank to let her have a check placed in her in a rented box in the vault early on Monday morning. That morning she visited the bank and got the box. The sheriff also put in an appearance, but the box had been delivered before the attachment had been served on him.

The cashier says he does not know the contents of the box, but it is said to have contained diamonds, jewelry and securities. Mrs. Hedges took a train for New York on her way to Kullig House, Williamstown, Mass. Still another proceeding was one to make Cashier Bostwick, of the Stinking Bank divulge what information he had in regard to the two $50,000 notes on which $25,000 had been paid, and his connection with them. This took the cashier before Judge Barnard in Poughkeepsie twice, and he gave a check for $3,500, the ten per cent. he received for collecting the money on the notes.

A Georgia Alligator Story.

SATURDAY NIGHT ADVENTURE OF A LONE HORSMAN.

The Dublin (Ga.) Post says: On Saturday night last Mr. W. L. Renfro left Dublin late after supper, and having some twelve miles to drive he did not reach home until 2 o'clock Sunday morning. Mr. Renfro's horse, however, is about half a mile beyond Rocky Creek—a stream which is known to be infested with alligators. He had crossed the creek and was near the house, where he and a dozen young pigs confided in a pen. The moon was in the zenith, and the night was almost as bright as day. Suddenly his horse received a ponderous blow on the shoulder from the tail of an alligator, knocking the animal entirely out of the pen. The alligator did not follow up the fight, but now stood on the defense, in a threatening attitude, however, with his huge mouth stretched open wide enough to take in the end of Renfro's horse. Mr. Renfro took a hold from the fence and rammed it into the monster's throat. As quick as light the alligator closed on the rail and hurled Mr. Renfro against the fence, hurting him badly and snapping the rail like a chalk pipe. He then called to his family to send him his gun, pistol and ax. While waiting for his weapons he amused himself by pitching fence rails into the alligator's mouth. He broke a dozen rails as easily as if they were sticks. When his weapons came he shot the alligator twelve times with a Smith & Wesson pistol and four times with a shot gun, and then buried an ax in his head in eight places. After all this he was not extinct for twelve hours afterward. All the pistol balls, however, did not enter. Fully half of them glanced harmlessly from the tough hide and went singing away through space. When the monster lay on his back, that his fangs were getting his head of him in the agony of pain and despair, he belched out, making the earth tremble. He was brought to town and put on exhibition here Sunday afternoon, and was a big attraction. He was pronounced by all to be the largest alligator they had ever seen. He was over ten feet long and extraordinarily large for his length, it being decided that he would weigh 1,000 pounds. He was pronounced by all to be the largest alligator they had ever seen. When the case was up for examination Mr. Weed testified mainly as follows: "One evening in June of last year I played a game of poker with Dr. Hedges and W. M. Scott in the laboratory of Dr. Hedges's house at Newburg. We began playing about 8 o'clock in the evening. At the end of several games I went out, but shortly returned. I think Dr. Hedges dealt the first hand after my return. I received three aces. I drew two cards and got the fourth ace. The doctor dealt and Dr. Hedges announced himself as satisfied with his.
